Any investor who wants to redeem ("cash out"), transfer to a self-directed RRSP, or exchange into another of the Marquest Corporate Class Funds, any or all of their investment, may do so on or after September 26, 2013, so long as proper notice is received by Marquest (CIBC Mellon), and proper procedures are followed.

However, redemption or transfer to an RRSP constitutes a deemed disposition and triggers capital gains, which must be reported based on the ACB per mutual fund share. The ACB form (page 3) also includes the soft costs deductions allowed for subsequent years. The form is also available on our website.

The investors' options are as follows:

- (i) retain Rollover Mutual Fund shares in the investor's name;
- (ii) transfer some or all of the Rollover Mutual Fund shares to a self-directed RRSP;
- (iii) redeem (cash-out) some or all of the Rollover Mutual Fund shares;
- (iv) switch some or all of the Rollover Mutual Fund shares for shares in another of the Marquest Corporate Class Funds (at no cost, with no taxable disposition triggered);
- (v) donate some or all of the Rollover Mutual Fund shares to a Canadian registered charitable organization or other qualified donee for an additional tax deduction; or
